Item 2 – Material Changes

Annual Update

The Material Changes section of this brochure will be updated annually when material changes occur since the previous release of the Firm Brochure.

Material Changes since the Last Update

We have the following material changes to report since the last annual update of this Firm Brochure that was dated February 22, 2022:

- Item 5: The estate planning rates per hour vary from lower rates for paralegals to higher rates for attorneys, with rates up to $875/hour for senior attorneys.
- Item 8: Uncertainty of Tax Planning Risk - Most estate planning techniques are subject to risk. Many techniques are uncertain as to how the IRS or courts may view the planning methodology involved. Many courts opinions are very fact specific so that applying a similar technique in a different circumstance may not have the same result. Most or all estate planning techniques have offsetting costs which constitute a risk. For example, removing an asset from someone's estate may save estate tax, but will prevent an income tax basis step up thereby creating a greater income tax cost. Weighing the relative risks and costs is often impossible.

Other immaterial changes have been made throughout this brochure.

Item 4 – Advisory Business

Firm Description

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. was founded in 1988.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. (d/b/a/ Shenkman Law) provides personalized confidential estate planning advice, and ancillary to that estate planning advice may provide limited financial planning advice to high net worth individuals, trusts, estates, charitable organizations and closely held businesses (but the firm does not provide financial forecasts or projections or any specific investment advice).

Advice is provided through consultation with the client and may include: determination of estate planning goals and objectives, financial planning goals and objectives, identification of legal, tax estate, and financial problems, tax planning, insurance review in general terms (no policy selection or carrier selection advice is ever provided), general investment allocation and location discussions (no specific investment advice is ever rendered), education funding, retirement planning, and other matters ancillary to estate planning.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. is strictly a fee-only law firm providing estate and related and ancillary planning advice. The firm does not sell any products, including but not limited to: annuities, insurance, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, limited partnerships, or other products, commissioned or otherwise. The firm is not affiliated with entities that sell financial products or securities. No commissions in any form are accepted. The firm does not manage assets. The firm has no custody over any assets. No finder's fees are accepted.

Any financial or investment advice, if any, is solely provided an integral part of an estate plan, and is ancillary to the estate planning services provided. In addition, MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. advises clients regarding estate planning, cash flow, college planning, retirement planning, tax planning and other matters solely in a manner that is ancillary to, and incidental to, estate planning services provided.

Specific investment advice, including but not limited to security, insurance, or other product selection is never provided. MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not act as a custodian of client assets. The client or the client's other advisers always maintain asset control. MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not place any trades for any clients under any circumstances.

A written evaluation of each client's initial situation may be provided to the client, often in the form of a letter or memorandum and/or approximate and general net worth statement. Annual review meetings are recommended to all clients, and are essential for all clients, so that general courses of action that need to be taken can be reviewed, monitored and updated. More frequent reviews are recommended when circumstances warrant. All reviews require the client to initiate the meeting process.

Other professionals (e.g., corporate, real estate, securities, litigation and other lawyers, accountants, insurance agents, care managers, etc.) are engaged directly by the client on an as-needed basis. MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does retain outside consultants other than attorneys or accountants to provide tax or legal advice. Conflicts of interest will be disclosed to the client in the event they should occur.

Meetings, which may be in person, by telephone, or web conference, are billed at regular hourly rates. Most work is billed hourly, although drafting fees are billed for certain documents and fees may be adjusted to reflect the complexity involved, novelty and creativity of planning and other factors.

Principal Owner

Martin M. Shenkman, Esq. is the 100% stockholder.

Types of Advisory Services

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. provides estate planning services only, and ancillary and incidental thereto may provide financial planning, and related planning advice. MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. never provides investment supervisory services, also known as asset management services. MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. never manages investment advisory accounts nor does it ever provide investment supervisory services, furnish specific investment advice through consultations or otherwise, issues periodicals about securities, issue special reports about securities; and issues, charts, graphs, formulas, or other devices which clients may use to evaluate securities.

As its primary business and service MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. furnishes estate planning advice to clients. Ancillary and incidental to such estate planning advice, MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. may provide advice on matters such as financial planning matters, taxation issues, and trust services that often include, or our part of, estate planning.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not ever provide advice or consulting concerning specific investments.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not manage any client assets.

Tailored Relationships

The goals and objectives for each client are documented in our billing system, memorandum and other client communications. Investment policy statements are not created or provided, but estate plans are created that reflect the stated goals and objective of each client. Martin M. Shenkman, P.C. may comment on or modify and investment policy statement created by a clients investment or wealth adviser, but in no instance shall be deemed responsible for any such investment policy statement.

Agreements may not be assigned without client consent.

Types of Agreements

The following agreements define the typical client relationships.

Estate Planning Agreement

Work is generally based on a written Representation Agreement, supplemented by other communications, that set forth specifics of the relationship, including billing methods, rates and policies, procedures with respect to communications and technology, certain of the many risk factors inherent in the estate planning process, the fact that there are no guarantees of any planning results, and other terms and conditions. An estate plan is designed to help the client with many but not all aspects of estate planning. No investment management services are provided either before or after the estate plan is completed.

The estate plan may include, but is not limited to: preparation of a net worth statement (although it is recommended that the client's accountant prepare a more formal balance sheet); a review of investment and other accounts (but not including a formal review of specific investment holdings, asset allocations, risk factors, and never providing specific security repositioning recommendations); strategic and other income, gift, estate and generation skipping transfer tax planning; a general discussion of retirement accounts and life insurance (but never including specific recommendations as to investment considerations, policy or carrier selection); estate planning review and recommendations; and education planning with funding recommendations.

Detailed investment advice and specific recommendations are never provided as part of an estate plan, or otherwise. Selection of which of various planning options is a decision to be made solely by the client and for which the client is responsible. Implementation of the estate planning and ancillary recommendations is at the discretion of the client and remains in all events the client's responsibility.

Representation Agreement

In most circumstances, a Representation Agreement) is executed memorializing the terms of the relationship.

Termination of Agreement

A Client may terminate any of the aforementioned agreements at any time by notifying MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. in writing and paying the hourly rates, out of pocket costs and drafting and other fees incurred, for the time spent, and work done, on the engagement prior to notification of termination. If the client made an advance payment, MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. will refund any unearned portion of the advance payment.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. may terminate any of the aforementioned agreements at any time by notifying the client in writing. If the client made an advance payment, MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. will refund any unearned portion of the advance payment. A client may be terminated immediately, subject to applicable rules of ethics and governing regulations.

Assets Under Management

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not manage client assets.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

Description

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. bases its fees on hourly charges, drafting fees, out of pocket costs (including outside consultants) and out of pocket expenses, and the complexity and nature of the work.

Fees are not negotiable.

The fee for an estate plan is based on hourly rates plus certain drafting fees, plus out of pocket costs. Fees may be adjusted to reflect the complexity involved, novelty and creativity of planning and other factors, as permitted by applicable ethics and other rules and any other applicable regulations. Since estate planning is an ongoing process, situations may arise wherein the client is unaware of certain estate planning, tax, legal, or financial exposures or predicaments. If identified and disclosed these can then be addressed as part of the planning process.

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. and the client must both approve the change of scope in advance of the additional work being performed.

The rates per hour vary from lower rates for paralegals to higher rates for attorneys, with rates up to $875/hour for senior attorneys. Outside consultants are used and billed for.

Fee Billing

Fees are billed approximately monthly for services rendered. Initial payments are generally requested in advance of services being provided.

Other Fees and Expenses

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C., bills for out of pocket costs and expenses incurred on any client matter and outside consultants used on such matter. Fees may be adjusted to reflect the complexity involved, novelty and creativity of planning and other factors, as permitted by applicable ethics and other rules and any other applicable regulations.

Expense Ratios

Not applicable

Past Due Accounts and Termination of Agreement

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. reserves the right to stop work on any account that is overdue, or for any other reason, or no reason. In addition, MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. reserves the right to terminate any estate or other planning engagement where a client has willfully concealed or has refused to provide pertinent information about financial situations when necessary and appropriate, failed to pay outstanding bills for more than 30 days, or for any other reason permitted by applicable ethics rules or other applicable regulations, in MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C.'s sole and absolute judgment. Any unused portion of fees collected in advance will be refunded.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. does not charge performance-based fees, and therefore, does not engage in side-by-side management.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Description

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. generally provides advice to high net worth individuals, trusts, estates, closely held corporations or business entities. Client relationships vary in scope and length of service.

Account Minimums

There are no minimum net worth requirements for clients.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. gathers required information through in-depth personal interviews and consultations with a client's other advisers.

Information gathered includes a client's current financial status, future goals and attitudes towards a wide array of risks, but it is not possible to identify or plan for all risks. Every plan and transaction is inherently subject to risk relating to economic changes, tax law changes, negative tax consequences and risks, offsetting negative economic consequences, family dynamics, valuation issues, and many other potential risk factors.

Related documents supplied by the client may be reviewed, however, many client supplied documents are merely held in the client's file without review so that the client file will be complete. Documents that are reviewed include a questionnaire completed by the client. Preparation of a written memorandum is essential to the process and is recommended and is typically prepared.

Other sources of information that MARTIN M. SHENKMAN, P.C. may use include , web based research, lien and judgment searches, general internet information searches, and information provided by a client's other advisers and in some instances due diligence reports from independent investigative services.

Investment Strategies

No advice is provided as to any specific product (including life insurance and annuities), securities, private equity, or investment strategy.

Risk of Loss

Estate plans always include risks that are borne by the client as to legal outcomes, tax consequences, economic consequences, matrimonial and litigation risks, and other factors. Clients face a number of risks in every plan, including but not limited to the following risks:

- Uncertainty of Tax Planning Risk: Most estate planning techniques are subject to risk. Many techniques are uncertain as to how the IRS or courts may view the planning methodology involved. Many courts opinions are very fact specific so that applying a similar technique in a different circumstance may not have the same result. Most or all estate planning techniques have offsetting costs which constitute a risk. For example, removing an asset from someone's estate may save estate tax, but will prevent an income tax basis step up thereby creating a greater income tax cost. Weighing the relative risks and costs is often impossible.
- Change in law Risk: Changes in the law may dramatically change the impact and effectiveness of any planning advice offered, it may even make a plan that may have provided tax or other benefits, a detriment. There is no means to predict how future legislation may impact any planning done in the past or currently. This is why annual review meetings are essential to review the status of any planning.

- Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause estate plans to vary or fail.
- Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk may affect, and even negate, the success of many estate planning strategies including but not limited to grantor retained annuity trusts (GRATs), note sale and other transactions.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation. This could adversely affect gift, estate and retirement planning goals, and result in financial hardships as a result of gift and other transfers that were not anticipated.
- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This could relate, for example, to fixed income securities and could have a severe adverse impact on gift, estate, retirement and related planning. For example, payment of GRAT annuity payments may be invested at a lower return.
- Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. Client's relying on the success of a concentrated business holding, and in particular a family or closely held business, face considerable risk from lack of diversification and other factors that could undermine any estate, tax, retirement or related plan. For example, a family business or real estate holding could be sold to a trust and thereafter decline in value which could have a negative estate tax impact. Family dynamics, estate planning, and a myriad of other factors might apply to adversely affect succession planning, asset protection provided by an entity, income tax results, and more.
- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not. Dependence on real estate, personal assets, collectibles or a family or closely held business can present tremendous liquidity risks. Assets transferred to irrevocable trusts or other planning structures, even if liquid, may not be available thereby exacerbating liquidity risks.
- Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value. Financing may also be involved in note sale and other estate planning transactions, premium financed life insurance transactions, and other estate related transaction, family or entity loans, may all increase financial risk.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Legal and Disciplinary

The firm and its employees have not been involved in any legal or disciplinary events related to past or present estate planning clients.
